

Away They Go: Summer Preview 2017

It's that time again, summer folks; whether you're heading out east to the Hamptons, upstate for a hike, or Nantucket to lounge seaside, here's your guide to summering 2017.

As hard as it is to believe (given the never-ending spring showers in New York's forecast) summer is in fact just around the corner, meaning flocks of the fashion-y and fabulous will be deserting the city in search of a tan.

But while the majority of the fashion flock follow each other like lemmings and head east to the Hamptons, there are a few brave souls who head to farther pastures in upstate New York, Nantucket — or even beyond. Here, a look at both the tried and true and what's new around and about.

Those looking to expand their horizons beyond Long Island (but, you know, not too much) are in luck, as the team behind Gurney's Montauk is opening a second location in Newport this Memorial Day. "Newport is an extremely popular yearround resort town, and there are not that many hotel rooms," says Gurney's owner George Filopoulos, who has been a vacationer in the area for years. The popular Beach Club in Montauk has been interpreted into the Pineapple Pool Club at the Newport location.
